Coatings

Chance & Hunt has traditionally supplied coatings products to both UK and International markets. In 2004 it established Coatings as a separate business unit. This greater focus has allowed the further development of business in this sector by building on the C&H teams' core strengths and increasing the internal skill base.

C&H Coatings has built up a broad portfolio of resins, pigments, additives and solvents and, through the Azelis network, has developed a strong infrastructure with both UK and international routes to market.

This successful track record in market development has been instrumental in attracting new Principals. As a consequence Chance & Hunt can offer customers an expanding choice of products sourced from Europe, US and Asian markets.

Adding value

The Coatings team offers market specific knowledge combined with a dedicated customer service group capable of handling both bulk and small lot customer requirements.

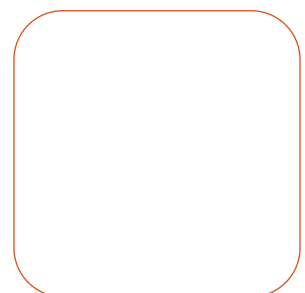

The team provides the right mix of commercial and technical expertise, recognising that this is a market where application innovation and development is often as important as best value for money.

In this highly competitive market, C&H Coatings adds value through providing excellent customer service and technical support across a wide diversity of applications using coatings products.

Setting the standard

A clear emphasis on customer service is embedded in the Chance & Hunt culture and feedback from customers consistently places a high value on this.

Customer service standards focus on delivery, responsiveness, sample despatch and query management. Service levels are continually monitored and targets are agreed and reviewed regularly. Performance improvement is fostered across the whole business, within each section, with partner organisations and for each individual member of our staff.

Chance & Hunt operates a Quality Management System to ensure a 'right first time' approach and to improve levels of service. The business consistently conforms to all relevant industry standards including safety, health, environmental and legal requirements. Chance & Hunt is registered to ISO 9000:2000.

In addition, Chance & Hunt, through the British Chemical Distributors and Traders Association (BCDTA), is fully committed to the Responsible Care® programme, which has been developed by the chemical industry jointly in 47 countries around the world. This commitment requires members to continually improve their Health, Safety and Environmental performance, and active Product Stewardship plays a major role in our ongoing ability to deliver these objectives.
